Page 1

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 2

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 3

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 4

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 5

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 6

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 7

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 8

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 9

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 10

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 11

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 12

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 13

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 14

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 15

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 16

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 17

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 18

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 19

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.

Page 20

The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background. The reading of a document is a quiet negotiation between the page and the eye. Each paragraph offers a shape, and the reader accepts or refuses it. Where the text is dense the eye slows, and where it opens out the eye moves ahead of the understanding. This is the ordinary rhythm of reading, and a reader that respects it disappears into the background.